You are one out of eleven
inspired by Shunichi

Hello, I'm Shunichi! Thank you for picking up "Qi ni Naru Anoko!"

After beginning with the story about the Kiba, Eji and Takemura, in "Delicious Kai no Melody" and continuing with the one about their fathers in "Sassanai Futari", I am very happy that I could write a story for the supporting character Wada as the main lead. It's due to everyone's support that I was able to create this for. Thank you very much. (And thanks to my unending love for side-characters.)

So, although this volume is supposed to contain what I've drawn in the magazine, I took to revising the last part of the story. Due to that, the magazine version might have a different kind of feeling to it. (Both versions are still pretty though.) For the finale, I had thoughts of wanting to dispose the gentlemen of Wada and without wanted to prepare him for society before leaving him out into the basement of the school — I found it to be that way. However, if that wasn't the case, if it wasn't on a sweet tender-hearted Wada wouldn't have been that liked.

I made three characters while I was still in high school and had forever wanted to write about them and finally to be able to bring me joy. However, at that time it was an spirit and bright story about a guy and a girl couple, yet but I polished it to become a BL story — I'm not sure where the optimism and brightness I wanted went since this story is a little gloomy. But I'm still very proud and takes with it as if those who've read it also feel that way, I'm very glad.

Lastly, I would be very happy if you enjoyed reading this story. Thank you.
